1. SITUATION

Who are we? What has happened?

While US Forces are preparing their strike on Al Rayak to take out Yuri during Operation Black Knight, a detachment of UKSOC has been deployed to the distant Vinjesvingen Region on the destroyer H.M.S Virtuous.

CSAT has established a global Rapid Response Network (CRRN) that allows them to quickly and efficiently mobilize forces to reinforce key positions all over the globe. The CRRN's backbone is formed by a series of commercial satellites that were injected with malicious software, allowing CSAT to take control of them momentarily. The CRRN's main control centre on the ground is located in the region of Vinjesvingen, which was chosen due to its remoteness.

JICO has identified the CRRN as a potential high-risk target, threatening the successful completion of Operation Black Knight; and have sanctioned a UKSOC operation to seize control of the CRRN, likely causing a blackout in the reinforcement deployment strategy of CSAT, allowing US forces to operate more safely in Al Rayak for an extended period of time - up to 18 hours.
